Freedom Requires Responsibility ...

This is the message Supervisor of Elections Brian E. Corley hopes to instill in the hearts of Pasco County teens by providing an education program that encourages young citizens to vote.

Students will be asked to “vote in honor of a vet.” The experience will be personalized by providing them with biographical information about the veteran they will be honoring. To signify their commitment, students will receive commemorative dog tags to wear as a daily reminder of their veteran’s personal sacrifice toward the preservation of our country’s founding ideals.

To motivate students to “give back” to those who gave so much, arrangements will be made for a veteran to speak in the classroom. Through interactive dialogue, students can gain an appreciation of what others have contributed to insure that they enjoy the same freedom today.

For 30 years beginning in 1972, voter turnout among 18-24 year olds showed a nearly continuous decline, a trend that began to show upward growth in 2004, 2006, and again in 2008. The 2008 presidential election represents the highest voter turnout for this age group since 1972, where it is estimated that nearly 23 million 18-29 year olds cast a ballot.

This is good news for everyone of this country and the perfect opportunity to keep the momentum going. Programs such as the Vote in Honor of a Vet can reinforce this trend. If you are a veteran, we invite you to become a partner in delivering this important message to our youth. Together we can make a difference.
